Re: Fredonia

Dear Bill,

Read with interest your story on Fredonia.

I thought I could fill in some of the blanks and add a few stories.

I do not know the source of your comment that Andrew Hudson came from North Carolina. I had always understood he came from Michigan. The story was he suffered from a lung disease and was sent by his family, with money, to buy a ranch in a drier climate. Just as people went to Arizona a hundred years later.

There was a story that Hubert was teasingly called "sugar" by his fellows and he would fight them about it. He also earned his large strong hands, which he certainly had, by throwing bricks working in the kiln at Fredonia.

His sister Hazel and brother Orlin supposedly helped stake him when he first left Kansas to go to Boston where he made his first big money in the leather business.

Orlin, a big and beautiful man, was very kind to me. He was a civil engineer and a major of engineers in the American Expeditionary Army in France in 1918. I recall the story that he earned a Silver Star for picking up his superior officer and carrying him across a bridge although he was holding his own guts in from a wound. Hubert either bought the rest of the ranch from his siblings or from others. In any event he gave Orlin a sinecure by hiring him as manager.

Hubert was exempted from the draft because of the work he was doing in the leather business. The story is he went to meet the draft board in Boston and saw so many women crying over their Italian sons going off to war that he enlisted. But the war was over a month later.

After Hubert's death, I managed the property from mid forties until I sold it for the family about 1958. I sold it to the Neill brothers who were share cropping it for us.

I recall one of the first ventures I ever did. Franky Yturria and I equally purchased about five hundred head of steers in Old Mexico, crossed them, wintered on our place in Brownsville and sent them to summer on the bluestem grass on the Fredonia ranch and then to market in Kansas City. For exposing too much money and a lot of effort we barely got our money back after expenses. Our appreciation of the value of gold bonds went up.

I recall going to the ranch each Thanksgiving. Hubert in effect kept it as a place to shoot quail and to give Orlin a job. Hazel was married to Sy Newcombe and lived in town. She was very gracious and doted on Caroline. Your father, Hubert, played anagrams with big Hubert's mother, who also lived in town in a separate residence. She berated him when she caught him cheating. He loved words and the language even as a boy.

When we would go there in the 1930's, the ranch supported three families and assorted single men to work the place using mules. When I sold it twenty years later, two part timers, the Neills, ran more cattle and raised more crops. Such was the mechanization going on in agriculture.

Another vignette: Hubert's father, Isaac, evidently was instrumental in putting up the opera house on the square, which building I remember. There was also a story that during the depression no needy man was ever turned away from the ranch.

Rex Lafferty, a young man whom Hubert had given an education, became a lawyer and went back to Fredonia to practice. He assisted me on taxes and eventual sale.

I close with a story at Orlin's funeral which I went up for about 1954. There were at least a hundred Hudsons at the funeral. None of whom had I ever met. Several of whom came up to announce that they were cousins, however removed. I remember one old, gap toothed, tobacco stained, crusty character with a single gallup holding up his jeans who in conversation allowed he was from Tennessee and that the family had moved west from Virginia roots over the century, and he wound up in Tennessee instead of Kansas because "his grand daddy fell out of the tail end of the wagon before youm".

follow, he saw three wars.

Junior asked his dad what he thought about him getting married. Dad Smith told him it would completely depend on him. I guess since Junior was 25, Dad Smith thought he was old enough. Junior and Opal Bentley were married January 1, 1947.

One time Dad Smith went to visit Junior and family in Texas. While dining out one evening, his daughter-in-law told him what he needed was a girl friend, and looking around the room, she saw a lady she knew, not too pretty, well, maybe a little. She said "There is a girl for you." Dad Smith looked at the lady and back to Opal. "If thats the best you can pick, I'm sure not going to let you pick my friends," he told her.

Opal and Arthur Smith, Jr. have two daughters. They are both married and live in Texas City, Texas. Sheila Marie O'Connor was born August 14, 1948 and has two children: Michelle L. and Jaimie D. Sharon Lee Cornett was born July 14, 1950 and has two boys: Michael S. Jr. and Kevin S.

SMITH, ARTHUR LEROY AND CLARA REAGAN

F686

Arthur Leroy Smith was born on his parents homestead in the north part of Wilson County in Prairie Township, on August 9, 1878 to Isaac Harter and Mary Jane Winner Smith. Arthur, (Bud) was one of ten children, Effie and John were born in Indiana. Richard, Frank, Charlie, Arthur, Matt, Clinton, Isaac and Alpha C. (deceased) were born on the homestead.

Arthur married Clara Reagan on February 22, 1905 in Fredonia, Kansas. Clara was the daughter of William S. Reagan, born April 3, 1840, died April 4, 1913 and Annie E. Reagan, born August 19, 1845, died February 14, 1929.

A farmer most of his life, in 1929 Arthur went into business with Mr. Tuttle and E.F. Hudson in Fredonia and they bought the Peerless Oil and Refinery gas station, later called Wilcox. Arthur delivered gas by tank truck to the farms.

Clara was born December 3, 1881 and died January 20, 1935. Arthur died October 29, 1960. They had six children: Cecil A.; Mary A.; Homer R.; Eugene E.; Arthur Jr. and one son Alfred L. born June 17, 1918 and died June 23, 1918.

A man of few words, Bud was never one to make a big to-do of doing a thing, just get on with it. I remember when I was trying to learn to ride a bicycle, he was sitting on the front porch watching me get on the bicycle and fall off. He stood up, put his pipe in his back pocket, got on the bike and rode right off. Around the block he went. I had never seen him ride a bicycle, it may have been the first time in his 65 years. As he came back to the front of the house, we could see smoke coming from his back pocket. His pipe had set it afire. He got off the bicycle, hit his pocket, putting out the fire. He gave me back the bike and said, "there now, you get on and ride," and you know I did. If my granddad could, I sure was going to.

SMITH, CALVIN CARRIGER AND MARGARET ELIZA (HICKS)

F687

Calvin Carriger Smith was born August 17, 1874, at Independence, Kansas, to Pleasant Donald Smith and Rachel (Craig) Smith.

Margaret Eliza Hicks was born February 24, 1874, at Neodesha, Kansas, to Jonathan Hicks and Martha Caroline Hicks.

On November 12, 1896, Calvin Carriger Smith and Margaret Eliza Hicks were united in marriage at the home of her parents five and one-half miles north of Neodesha.

To this union were born two children:

er's hands. In the room were the weights of a pair of grocer's scales which Snodgrass got in his possession. He hurled the heaviest one at Lowman with such great force, the Constable, being struck on the head, was knocked senseless. Snodgrass escaped to Neodesha where he stayed a day and a night, intoxicated, and slept in Phillips and Klinger's livery stable.

Doctors Craig of Guilford and Willits of Fredonia were called to Altoona to attend Lowman's injuries. The young constable's skull had been shattered and the doctors performed the operation called trephining. A trephine was a type of small crown saw used in surgery to remove circular discs of bones from the skull. Craig and Willits removed about 1½" square of bone from Lowman's skull.

Snodgrass was arrested on suspicion in Independence by the Montgomery County
Sheriff and Captain B.W. Ladd, Wilson County Sheriff, brought him to Fredonia to the county jail.

Marshal A. Gilmore Lowman died October 29, 1872.

Snodgrass was bound over to the next term of District Court at a preliminary trial held November 17, 1872 before Squire W.A.
Peffer. His bond was set at $5,000. Chase and Sweeney were the prosecuting attorneys and Miller and Russell were for the defense.

Although jail breaks were common in those days, tha one which Snodgrass successfully performed surely was an unusual one.

The county jail at that time was divided by means of iron bars placed six inches apart in two compartments. The space back of the grating were the cells, and the other part of the jail was used for other purposes and contained a stove. Snodgrass on Sunday night, November 18, or Monday morning, November 19, (the exact time uncertain) picked the lock of the partition door and thus being able to get to the stove, took fire
"therefrom" and burned a hole in the roof,
the aperture large enough for him to escape.

Monday night, Sheriff B.W. Ladd and deputy, H.C. Barrett, accompanied by R.T.
Taylor, Altoona, widened their search and arrived in Neodesha in hot haste after Snodgrass. They stayed only long enough to eat and feed their horses, then rode on south toward Independence.

Apparently, Snodgrass made good his escape for following accounts do not record his capture. The authorities thought at the time he would head south to Indian Territory and on to Texas.

ALBERT E. SMITH T218

Albert E. Smith, Republican Sheriff, 1873-1877, was an Ohioan who came to Kansas Territory in 1860 and on to Wilson County in 1867, homesteading in the Big Sandy Creek area in Verdigris Township. In 1874, he was appointed deputy U.S. Marshal by of 1874. Neodeshans, unwilling to have the courthouse records be in Fredonia while the county seat was determined in the Kansas Supreme Court, came to Fredonia in their wagons and began removing the said records.

Although information in regard to that fateful day is sparse, undoubtedly there were a few cracked heads and Smith must have had his hands full trying to contain the mob.

Some Fredonians asked Probate Judge Stivers to issue a restraining order on the removal of the county's property and it fell to Sheriff Smith to serve the papers to the Neodesha faction. (See Battles for County Seat). The Neodesha citizens climbed into their wagons and headed back to the confluence of the Fall River and the Verdigris River.

Albert E. Smith was appointed Clerk of the District Court in 1878. He died August 26, 1888.

THOMAS McINTOSH T219

Thomas McIntosh, Republican, was Sheriff of Wilson County from 1877 until he was forced to resign in May, 1880. He was sheriff during the "Texas Fever" siege of Fredonia which is recorded in G.W. Schlegel's story.

The editor of the Wilson County Citizen in April, 1880 was asking "where's the Sheriff?"
but McIntosh was busy with Sheriff's Sales in regard to delinquent taxes. And the monies collected by him were to lead to his downfall and subsequent resignation.

Sheriff McIntosh had collected in the neighborhood of $1,800 cash but the rub came when he only deposited between $400 and $500 to the accounts. He was charged with withholding for himself $1,375, a rather tidy profit in those days. When the misappropriation of funds came to the attention of the County Commissioners, he hastily tendered his resignation to Gov. St. John.

In August, the Board of County Commissioners of Wilson County instituted a suit against McIntosh and bondsmen W.P. Clark, Eli Neff and John Donohue. The commissioners, represented by County Attorney T.J.
Hudson, were asking for the recovery of $2,000.

Sheriff Thomas McIntosh became the first sheriff asked to resign.

FATELEY, CLARENCE AND FREIDA (STEWART)

F257

Clarence and Freida (Stewart) Fateley on their 50th Wedding Anniversary, October 3, 1973.

Clarence D. and Freida (Stewart) Fateley were born and raised in southwest Missouri. He was born July 28, 1903, the only son of James Roy and Elizabeth (Norris) Fateley, near Galena, Missouri. Freida was born February 5, 1906 near Reede Springs, Missouri, the daughter of Walter "Waldo" and Cora (Perry) Stewart. They were married at Galena, Missouri October 3, 1923 and left that afternoon on the Frisco train for Cherryvale, Kansas where Clarence had employment on a farm near Big Hill Lake.

They lived there some two and one-half years and their first child, Loma, was born July 25, 1924. Pay was low and times were hard so they moved to Douthat, Oklahoma and Clarence worked in the lead and zinc mines. Their second child, Clarence Jr. "Bud," was born there September 21, 1926. When the mine closed in April, 1927 they came to Fredonia to work for the Frisco railroad. Sickness put an end to that and they went to Doane's Second Hand Store to sell their furniture, intending to go back to Missouri, but Miles Doane sent them to see Edna Russell, west of Fredonia, who needed farmhand. They worked there until October, 1929 when they moved four miles south and one mile west of Fredonia to work for Hugo Loether. Wages were $25 per month, milk and eggs, house and garden and half the team check from a herd of 12 to 16 cows, milked and cared for before and after work hours, 7 a.m. - 6 p.m. with an hour for lunch.

try farming for themselves on a farm west of town owned by Jim Wever (later by Leland Brindle).

Summer of 1936 was hot and dry and temperatures reached 121 degrees. One could walk down the middle of Fall River and not find enough water to swim in. Clarence took his team and helped build the low-water bridge on Fall River, west of the Pratt place. The children attended Pleasant Point School. Several years later Loma returned to teach in this same school.

March, 1937 the family moved back to the Merino District, to the Hudson Ranch and Clarence worked for Orlin Hudeon as Foreman. The ranch consisted of 2,000 acres with three homes. They kept a herd of up to 350 Black Angus cattle, raising much of their feed on the farmland. There would be as many as six single men living at the Central Ranch House where a married couple were in charge of the cooking, etc, raising garden, hogs and turkeys and helping care for the many horses. It was here Clarence began working with the veterinarian, Armer Porter, Sr. He had a natural feel for working with animals and enjoyed it. Years later when the ranch was sold Clarence worked for Dr. H.J. Davies, near Benedict, raising Herefords.

In the early 1950s they moved into Fredonia and Clarence began working full time with the veterinarian: Armer Porter, Jr., Jamee Smart, Kim Nevitt, Charles Fox and Evan Sumner. He retired while working for Nevitt but continued working part time as needed, always on Sales Day and Saturday. His last working day was September 14, 1982. He passed away October 17th with cancer.

Freida was always busy with family, home and church (Assembly of God) and spent many hours caring for the grandchildren. She enjoyed gardening and canning; was an excellent cook and loved family gatherings. She was in the hospital October 3 for chemotherapy and she and Clarence spent their 59th Anniversary there together. She passed away May 17, 1983. The Fredonia Cemetery is their final resting place till Jesus comes.

FAULKNER FAMILY

F258

The Faulkner family history is quite sketchy in the beginning. We do know that Benjamin's father was Sam Faulkner and he originally came from Illinois by covered wagon to Bolivar, Missouri.

Benjamin Faulkner married Ethel Eather Miller on April 21, 1909 near Bolivar, Missouri. Benjamin and Ethel had five children: Verma born March 21, 1911 near Bolivar; Filbert High born August 28, 1913 near Elmore, Kansas; Cora Lee born April 17, 1917 near Grisham, Missouri; Margaret born February 16, 1921 near Bolivar; and Fred born February 19, 1926 near Coyville, Kansas. Benjamin and Ethel were farmers near Bolivar. In 1913 they moved near Elmore,

Kansas to farm, in 1916 they moved back to Missouri and in 1922 moved back around the Coyville area. Verma died in November, 1983. Cora Lee died in 1962.

On August 14, 1934 Filbert married Virginia Stewart, who was born near Neal, Kansas on July 5, 1914 to Clarence and Cordelia Stewart. Filbert and Virginia had two children: Shirley Rae, born May 3, 1935 at Benedict, and Barbara Lou, born October 31, 1936 at Benedict. In 1938 Benjamin Faulkner and his family moved to Bakersfield, California for a job and a change of climate. In 1941 Filbert and his family moved to California so that Filbert could work in the shipyards. In 1943 Filbert and his family moved back to Benedict where he bought the blacksmith shop which was located on Main Street. He operated the blacksmith shop until 1957. Filbert served as mayor of Benedict from April 7, 1949 to April 6, 1950. Filbert and Virginia lived below Buttermilk Hill located south of the Guilford bridge from 1957 until 1966. Filbert and Virginia started farming in 1957 with George Pierpoint and in 1961 Filbert started farming on his own. In April of 1966 he and Virginia moved to the Coyville area to farm. Filbert served as a Pioneer seed distributor for many years.

Virginia Faulkner died, after an extended illness, on August 5, 1977. Filbert married Alice Jones on September 6, 1977. Filbert and Alice currently live in Toronto, Kansas.

Shirley married Richard Guenther on November 15, 1951. They had one son, Robert Duane (Bobby) born August 16, 1952 and who later died of appendicitis on February 12, 1954. Shirley married Floyd Nelson Gray on August 16, 1955. They had two children: Shannon Marie, born January 24, 1956 and Floyd Nelson Jr. (Butch) born September 5, 1957. On August 7, 1965 Shirley married Eugene Hartley of Erie, Kansas. Shirley and Gene currently live in Erie.

SACRED HEART CHURCH

T137

Church, Fredonia, Kans.

Sacred Heart Church, Fredonia, founded in • Doris Mosher.

Founded in 1906, Sacred Heart was first served by priests from Neodesha, Father John Dominic being the first. In 1915 a resident pastor came to stay in the person of Father Francis Morrell. The church building is of brick and stone, located at 13th and Madison streets on a lot which was donated by the R.R. McGrath family.

It should be noted that Fredonia was on a circuit for the Jesuit missionaries from Osage Mission. It is recorded that Father Paul Ponziglione visited the Wilson County area as early as the 1850s to say Mass and administer the Sacraments. His journal makes note that "this station was established for the Irish and French squatters at Mr. Michael Reardon's House." If indeed these early Catholics were staking claim to their spot in the Kansas territory around Wilson County, it is only fitting that an Irishman of the second generation would donate a lot of the parish of Sacred Heart.

Other parish facilities include a cemetery, hall and rectory. The Sisters of Mercy came to teach in the school which served students in the Northwest corner of Wilson County. The school was a two-room facility built in 1953 during the pastorate of Father William Ryan, added to in 1960 by Father Ivan Eck. It was closed later.

An unusual arrangement was that of the priest's living quarters. The Sisters of Mercy also ran a hospital in Fredonia until 1985 called St. Margaret Mercy. The pastor of Sacred Heart parish lived at the hospital in the chaplain's quarters with the rectory serving as a parish hall until 1953 when a new hall was built.

Present pastor is Father Steve Scheier. Others included Fathers Denis Trayers, Neil Diver, Frank Colbert, Leo Hahn, Edward York and John White.

Arthur Hull Killed In Tractor Mishap Saturday

Arthur Wynn Hull, 58, of Wichita, and formerly of Benedict, was killed Saturday afternoon in a tractor mishap at the farm one-half mile south of Benedict, where Mr. and Mrs. Hull spent week ends.

According to reports, Hull left the house about 2:00 o'clock to plow. At about 4:00 p.m., his wife went to the field where she found him. His tractor had apparently struck a log as he was making a turn along a fence row, throwing him off, and into the plow. Sheriff Hubert Harris and Dr. Raymond Beal, acting as coroner were called to the scene.

Survivors include his wife Vera of the home, one daughter, Anita Hull of the home; two sons, Keith of the home in Wichita, and Loren of Sunnyside, California.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday, 10:00 a.m., at the Dunham Funeral Chapel with Rev. Ralph Hand officiating. Interment will be in the Maple Grove cemetery west of Roper. Friends may call at the Chapel after 10:00 a.m. Tuesday. 7-66

Other survivors include the wife, Mrs. Nancy Hull of the home in Cherryvale, and a stepson, Harry Hall, also of Cherryvale.

Funeral services were held at 3:30 Sunday afternoon in the Caringer Funeral Home, Cherryvale, and interment was in the Cherryvale cemetery.

Among relatives attending the service were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McClintock, Neodesha; Ray Saxon, Fayetteville, Ark.; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Green, Galesburg, Ill., and Hubert Green, Enid, Okla.

Among friends attending were Mr. and Mrs. Clark Stevens and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Krudwig, Neodesha, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thompson, El Dorado.

OBITUARY—HUDSON

Former Fredonia Woman Died September 28, in California.

Miss Elizabeth (Beth) Hudson, 77, of 2347 Olive Drive, Carlsbad, Calif., a retired piano teacher, died September 28 in a San Diego hospital.

Miss Hudson was born in Fredonia, Kansas, her parents being Emma Campbell Hudson and T. J. Hudson, a pioneer lawyer. She was graduated from the University of Kansas Fine Arts school in 1900 and spent some 50 years in teaching music. She was Fredonia's first (or early) librarian.

She went to California 12 years ago, living for two years with her sister, Blanche (Mrs. Earl) Rosenberg, at El Cajon, Calif. She spent ten years in Carlsbad and Oceanide, and prior to her short hospitalization, she was staying with another sister, Marjorie (Mrs. Howard) Temple, of 3491 Highland Drive, Carlsbad, Calif.

Miss Hudson held a 50-year pin in Kappa Kappa Gamma, was a member of Mistletoe Chapter, Eastern Star and formerly a worthy matron. She was a charter member of Wantono club and a member of Rhoda Carver Barton Chapter, D. A. R. In Carlsbad she belonged to the Women's Christian Organization of the Union church and the Kappa Alumnae club.

Surviving, besides Mrs. Rosenberg and Mrs. Temple, are two brothers, Andrew Hudson of Washington, D. C., and Tom Hudson of Texas.

Funeral services were held September 31 at the Berry-Bell chapel in Carlsbad with Rev. Roy Broken-shire officiating. Interment was in Eternal Hills cemetery, Oceanside Calif.

Mrs. R. J. Swartz of Fredonia, is a niece.

OBITUARY—E. F. HUDSON

9-29-49
A son's view of his father, as written by E. F. Hudson, Jr., of Pelham Manor, N. Y.

From causes, associated with old age, Edward Francis Hudson, senior, died on September 29, 1947, at the Wilson county hospital, in Neodesha, following a brief illness.

The funeral services were held on October 2 at 2:30 p. m. from the Wilson-Dunham Funeral Home, with the Rev. E. S. Worden of the Fredonia Christian church, officiating. The deceased was laid to rest at the side of his wife, in the Fredonia city cemetery.

Father had been failing rapidly for the past year, but stayed on his feet and enjoyed, in his peculiar way, his daily life until Tuesday, a week ago, when he was seen to fall on his familiar route between his home on South Seventh street and the business section.

He objected strenuously to his physician's orders to go to the hospital and, since he saw no point in being put to bed in any hospital, it was necessary that his bed be railed to prevent him carrying out his threat to arise, dress and, if necessary, walk from Neodesha to Fredonia.

However, following a half day of rest, he became unconscious and the scattered children, in Wichita, New York, Washington, D. C. and Miami, Florida, were notified of his apparently failing condition.

There is a story in every man's life and father's story could be built around his zest for living. He liked the unfenced prairies he knew as a boy, the thrill of the coming of the railroads, and his life as a cowboy in vast ranges existing then from New Albany to the west and south.

He liked people, he liked even the deadbeats who for years told him their stories and borrowed money. He liked the people whom no others liked.

Edward F. Hudson began life as "Eddie" Hudson, on a farm near Rockbridge, Ill., on March 15, 1865. In October of 1869 it seemed good to his father, Milton James Hudson, that he should load up all his earthly belongings and, with relatives and neighbors, let the ox teams carry them to Kansas, where ground was not waterlogged, streams ran clear, game was plentiful and cattle grass luxuriant. The distance from their former home to near West Mineral, Kansas, took them six weeks; father's children, hurrying to his bedside by plane, covered it in about an hour.

Then the families from Illinois sought higher land and trekked northwestward, crossing Fredonia on the trail about where the court-house now stands. In the Flint hills, near Piedmont, they found the grass, the water and the range they sought, there they settled, building crude sod houses at first to cover them.

Young Eddie grew up in the common pattern of frontier boys. He could ride and was noted as a strenuous horseman—he could shoot, for powder and bullets were not to be wasted. When times were hard, the Hudsons dined on what they had, many times this was sorghum and corn bread with parched corn coffee.

We children really never learned our father as most children do. Only late in life did he mention his career as a cowboy on the range, bedding out at night, facing heat and storm and drought from early spring until late fall. His range was roughly limited by New Albany on the east, Arkansas City on the west, the "Nation" on the south and the headwaters of Fall River on the north. "My brother Oscar and I were young and foolish" he would relate, riding hard, wasting our wages, whooping and hollering and shooting in the villages and towns at nights."

He enrolled in Kansas State Normal at Emporia and worked as a janitor to obtain his meals while in school. He taught rural schools in Greenwood county in that area now to be covered by the waters of the Fall river dam and in that valley he met Miss Laura Feebles, who became his bride.

He then conducted a grocery store in Severy. Then, at the height of the Populist movement he came to Eureka to become assistant county treasurer, then by the party, was placed in charge of the Eureka Union, a Populist organ. He then purchased the Woodson County Advocate in Yates Center, sold it in 1900 and purchased the Eureka Messenger. He then purchased the Fredonia Daily Herald of Max J. Kennedy and at one time owned the Herald, an interest in the Messenger, the Toronto Republican and two other smaller papers.

At the turn of the century father was prospering, but the oil and gas boom immediately following sheared him as a lamb of all his worldly goods and his children, then, became printers and linotype operators and the family, at times entirely alone, published the Daily Herald.

The older son, Ben, is now owner and editor of the Herald. The younger son, Ted, is an executive in an advertising agency in New York. Harriett, the oldest girl, is a linotype operator in Miami, Florida.

In 1916 father purchased the old Willets mansion on South Seventh and lived there the rest of his life. He had only one request, after Mother had passed on, and that was to remain in the old home, for they had agreed never to leave it.

Father was never a financial genius. He made money, but he seldom knew what became of it. Books were a horror to him, he would "jot down" an account, occasionally, but nothing in his accounts balanced and he did not care. He was a victim of sharpers, the unscrupulous, the dishonest. He knew he was honest, he believed every man, somewhere inside him, was honest also, and so he died a poor man.

Yet there is no man, nor was there ever one, who could say "Ed Hudson lied to me, lied about me, or cheated me."

All five of the children survive their father. Harriett V. Jones resides in Miami, Fla., Amy E. Latimer resides in Wichita. Ben S. Hudson is still in the home town. Nola B. Howes lives in Washington, D. C., and Edward F.

Hudson, Jr., resides in Pelham Manor, N. Y.

Also surviving him are nine grandchildren and nine great grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Ezra Bowen of Sturgess, S. D., and a brother, Earl, of Severy.

Kansas became known as the "Soldier State." Wilson County was settled mostly by these veterans and in 1883 over 800 were registered in the Wilson County Citizen as residents of the county.

Due to limited space, it is impossible to record their names here, however, in my research, I found the article which follows and will let it stand as representative of all War of the Rebellion veterans who populated this county:

Jacob Walters, Wilson County's last Civil War Vet, died Friday, July 14, 1939. He had served one year and 10 months in H Co. of the 14th U.S. Cavalry. Mr. Walters, who lived in Coyville, was survived by three nieces: Mrs. Bert Wade, Mrs. A.J. Weils and Mrs. John Hunter; and two nephews: George Wooten and Henry Walters.

"It Happened in Fredonia" by Ben S. Hudson - 1955

An institution widely known in the area for a number of years during the oil and gas boom days was known as the Santa Fe plug. It was a two coach steam passenger train that laid over here at night and left early for Chanute to meet a Kansas City train, remained in Chanute all day to bring passengers from the evening southbound train. The train was also available for football and baseball groups and would go almost anywhere between its regular Chanute trips if enough passengers would "sign up" to go.

Prior to radio, there was only one way for local sports to get baseball games or fights, that is, unless they wanted to wait for the "Kaysee" papers next day. A purse, usually of about $100 was made up and the Daily Herald would engage the Associated Press wires. The local Western Union man received the game, or fight, pitch by pitch or blow by blow, then importantly would rush the telegram to the Herald. It would be announced by megaphone then posted on a bulletin board.

FRASER'S RAW FUR COMPANY

B9

It was an interest in the sport of fur trapping, that laid the foundation for John Fraser, in what would become a local fur buying operation, known as Fraser's Raw Fur Company. John, who was born Sept. 24, 1959 in Fredonia, grew up his entire life in Fredonia, had an acute interest in Nature as a child and later grew to love hunting, fishing and eventually trapping. John's mother, Isa Mee Fraser, was supportive of John's interests in nature and his father, the late Harley Junior Fraser (1923-1986), was a true outdoorsman, and always loved hunting, fishing, and trapping. Throughout John's childhood, Junior taught him much of his knowledge on the outdoors. In the early 70s, when John was first learning to trap with box traps, he went with his dad, over to Junior's brother's residence, John M. Fraser, who lived on the Fraser family homestead. This farm of the Fraser family was acquired by John's grandparents, the late Harley C. and Eva Fraser in the early 1900s, which is located 7½ miles southeast of Altoona. It was here that John set out his first traplines and managed to catch a few opossums. After trapping a number of possums, it became apparent, that in order to trap a variety of furbearers, especially the more elusive animals such as coyote and fox, that box traps would not suit this purpose. It was then that Junior introduced John to steel foot-hold type traps and taught him how to set them and how to properly trap furbearers in them. As time went along, John learned to skin and care for the pelts, with the help from both his Dad and Fur Buyer, W. Dean Burkdoll, of rural Lyndon, KS. Each trip that was made to sell his seasons catch of furs to Dean, so inspired and amazed John at how so many furs could be bought and sold in one small place. And, how properly handled, one's raw furs could command a top market price. In the fall of 1976, John wrote to the State Fish and Game Commission in Pratt, KS, requesting an application for a Kansas Fur Dealers License.

Upon receiving the application, it was filled out and sent back with the $10. fee for review and approval. Within days, a large envelope arrived, containing John's first Ka. Fur Dealers License and set of Fur Dealer Record books. With the permission of his folks to use the family garage as his fur shed, at the age of 16, he was now ready for business. This first season went along fairly well and a small quantity of furs were bought from many of the area hunters and trappers. Although not everything purchased was later sold at a profit, as with first starting such a business, many lessons would have to be learned. Buying furs to resell, requires a lot of expertise and knowledge on being able to tell when a fur was either prime or not, and in general, the best quality furs from the lower quality and damaged ones. To learn this, only "hands on" experience and the years to follow would and did enable John to become a successful Fur Buyer. In 1978, John married Barbara Houchin of rural Fredonia, and purchased a home at 119 N. 15th St. in Fredonia. A separate 20X20' garage was situated out back of the house and thus became the new Fur Shed in 1979. As time had passed and the volume of furs bought and sold had steadily increased, a person who played a major role in John's success was friend and fellow fur buyer, Leonard Jirak, of rural Hartford, Ka. Beginning with the 78-79 season, John had reached an agreement to buy furs and sell them to Leonard, at an established market price, that was high enough to boost John's business more than triple what it had previously been. During the 1980-81 fur season, John purchased over 700 possum, 600 coon and 300 coyotes, and had people from all over Southeast Kansas bringing in their season's catch. At that time, John's cousin, Brad Stiles of Fredonia, learned the skill of properly fleshing or scraping of the incoming pelts. Since 1980 to date, Brad has spent many, many hours in the fur shed each season and has been the key person in the fleshing area.

This commercial fur market in the U.S. and abroad is ever constantly taking on change, as new fashions and trends for different types of furs come and go each season. Fur prices were for the most part not high when John began buying furs, but from 1979 to 1981, furs reached record price levels and the harvest increased dramatically. Since 1982, fur prices for most furbearers has been low and many people, except for the ones that really enjoy it, have either quit trapping or hunting at all.

ELLISON FARMS

B7

Ellison Farms, a fish farm, located one-half mile north of Coyville, was established in 1984-1985 by Frank and Maxine Ellison.

Ellison Farms use a unique method of aeration (putting oxygen into water) that makes the farm one of the most modern and one of the most productive (in terms of pounds of fish raised per acre of water) of any fish farm in the nation. The farm can successfully grow 8,000 pounds of channel catfish per acre, whereas, literature written by authorities on the subject suggest stocking rates not to exceed 1500-2000 pounds per surface acre of water. Conversion rates are 1.7 pounds of feed to each pound of gain compared to eight to one for beef cattle.

Wilson County now has only one other sizeable farm growing channel catfish. Frank's opinion is that fish farming can be an important adjunct or supplement to the county's agriculture base. At present prices, farmers can realize a net annual income of from 20 to 30 times that per acre realized from conventional farming. Consequently, Ellison Farms added two more ponds to their farm-raised channel catfish operation, increasing potential productivity by over 30 percent.

You will enjoy a trip to the Ellison Channel Catfish Farm during the months from April through September. Visitors are welcome and Frank will give you a guided tour if you call beforehand, or are able to find him at the farm. Taking care of the fish is a seven day per week operation for about six months of the year. But, once established, it only requires a few hours per day, allowing time for other farming or steady work of another kind.

Aquaculture is a relatively new industry to the United States. In Mississippi, fish farming has become a major industry, producing over 200 million pounds of channel catfish per year. The Kansas Aquaculture Industry is in its infancy, but even with the colder climate and shorter growing season, there is still plenty of time to raise and to market a good crop.

Wilson County farmers should be encouraged to investigate the economic benefits available to them through diversification of farming activities by the addition of fish ponds. The Ellisons have made it work. So can others.

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK IN FREDONIA

B8

The Wilson County Bank, Fredonia, Kansas was chartered on September 16, 1871 and converted to "The First National Bank in Fredonia" on January 1, 1937. The first stockholders were: Joseph P. Hill, Alex Hunt, T.J. Hudson, Milton Short, and Joshua Hill. The first officers were Joseph Hill, president, Joshua Hill, cashier and Milton Short, secretary.

The first location was the corner building at the west end of the north side of the square, (the old building was torn down before 1904). When this building became inadequate the bank moved to a larger building on the east side of the square, remaining there until 1879. At that time a new building of brick and stone (the first of its kind to be built in Fredonia) was erected and used by the bank until April 30, 1962. The building was added to and remodeled several times and still stands on the southwest corner of the square, having recently been used by the Chamber of Commerce as its office. On April 30, 1962 the bank moved to a new building two blocks east of the old bank at Eighth and Madison streets where it is located presently.

R.W. McGrath, attorney and benefactor of the local hospital, wrote in 1941 that in the very early days a rival bank in Fredonia attempted to "pump the Wilson County Bank dry" by piling up checks drawn on the WCB and then presenting them for payment when it deemed the WCB to be short of cash. Learning of this, T.J. Hudson and Peter Reeger went on a "hunting trip" to Parsons where they obtained a supply of cash from Joshua Hill (see above) who had moved to Parsons. After feeding their horses at Parsons, they returned to Fredonia and arrived as the sun came up. They had enough cash to pay all the checks as presented, thus stopping the only "run" attempted on the bank.

Presidents of the bank have been: Joseph Hill; Joshua Hill; Isaac Hudson; T.C. Singleton; J.T. Long; H.P. Jay; R.P. Williams; Ed Chapman; Ben S. Paulen; W.G. Fink; T.C. Babb; Ira M. Fink; Edgar L. Hollis; Warren W. Stover; Charles T. Parker and M.D. Jeffers.

Ben S. Paulen, noted Fredonian, who was associated with the bank for over forty years and served our state as Governor, was president of the Kansas Bankers Association from 1925-1926. In a stirring speech before the KBA annual convention, Gov. Paulen urged the formation of a state-wide local Vigilante Program for the protection of Kansas Banks. In the days before the Highway Patrol, small town banks were easy targets for daylight hold-up. For eleven years the Kansas Banker Vigilante Program was most effective in the protection of Kansas Banks. The project armed bank officers and a group of Fredonia citizens as well as other Kansans - and there were no robbery attempts during that time in Fredonia.

It is also interesting to note that T.C. Babb, who served at the bank in Fredonia from 1900 to 1951, was working at the Candon National Bank in Coffeyville the day that the Daltons came to rob the town's banks. In all the years to follow in his long banking career, he never experienced another hold-up.

At its centennial in 1971, the bank set up a 100 year trust fund for the City of Fredonia. Beginning with $500 in contributions from private individuals and $500 added by the bank, the fund will be valued at $139,563.39 when transferred to the city treasurer on September 16, 2071.

Space does not permit including all those who have contributed to the success of the bank over the last 116 years as officers, directors and employees. Instead, we will just list those presently associated with the bank: stockholders and directors, Franklin D. Gaines, William J. Palstad, M.D. Jeffers,
